It is clear that the new leader of Ecuador is a puppet of the US, and I'm not about to give him any latitude though he faces financial blackmail and other political pressures, as these US tactics are well known and routine. So the full responsibility rests on Lenin Moreno's shoulders for not respecting asylum conventions and human rights, what a dog!

However, it is Assange who broke the cardinal rule of hacking, ANONYMITY, and so he must accept his fate in a thoroughly corrupt world. To take on the most criminally corrupt state in existence and do it in plain sight is clearly NUTS, what did you expect Julian, a bouquet of flowers? .

So regardless of whichever perspective you take the outcome was assured, particularly in view of the fact that most people couldn't give a fuck.

So Julian, do you now regret your need to be noticed? If you do not suffer from a martyr complex then put it down to experiential folly and extraordinary naivety. Either way YOU made your bed, fool. Let all budding exceptional hackers take NOTE. Nevertheless, the fight goes on, corrupt, criminal authorities cannot apprehend what they cannot see or locate.

Power to the cyber underground!
