

Hallelujah

by sonny Thursday, Aug 2 2018, 10:04am international / poetry / post every sound continues while a medium exists to carry it yet i heard a pulse that originated in outer space where nothing is heard somehow it reached the earth specifically, me i informed friends that scoffed at the claim, c'mmon man, u know no sounds exist in a vacuum

well, i thought so once but not anymore the pulse was like a heartbeat that permeated all space and reached the earth for that to occur somewhere in space a burst or an event occurred indeed, i heard it plain as could be has it occurred to you that what u heard was an internal phenomenon, like an audible thought associated with a memory, or perhaps your own heartbeat?

yes, but its rhythm was altogether singular not my heartbeat though related perhaps u heard the big bang, why not, surely it would have made a racket, an explosion that created the universe it was other worldly and besides the big bang indicates a beginning whereas we all know existence is infinite, no beginning or end nevertheless, everything has a frequency and as such must produce sound

yes, but that would be a symphony, what i heard was a singular pulse unaccompanied by interference well, try and hear it again then trace it excellent idea so in a state of hyper relaxation i heard it again and was able to focus on it what i heard was both internal and external it was me, entering existence and persisting

---

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-168.html>