

The Machiavellian Approach to the Subversion of the USA

by huang Monday, Aug 6 2018, 9:37am

international / prose / post

First, realise as is evident on the daily news cycle that there is nothing UNITED about the United States, the nation couldn't more divided without plummeting headlong into another civil war. So why plan and design various new approaches to combating America when it has an obvious, under-exploited, Achilles heel -- raging INTERNAL DIVISIONS. Furthermore, I am not alone in predicting that the future for the USA, would not be determined by any external threat but by internal MOB RULE, of course resulting from the many opposed factions at each others' throats daily.

Division is so rife in the USA that politicians attempt to gloss over it, by saying that people are exercising their democratic right to free speech, opposition and political dissent, all the while being monitored by the elite-run surveillance State within a State. So the above political claims are pure drivel.

We have the NRA battling progressive forces to un-arm the citizenry; pro-life, a nice irony for the world's leading civilian killing nation, vehemently opposing abortionists and a woman's right to abort, as she is host, never forget it. Personally, I do not know one female that has not had an abortion for very sensible reasons, though I understand that a few exist.

Religionists oppose progressives and liberals, and vice-versa. The oppressed coloured minorities continue to struggle for equal rights and fair treatment in a white dominated racist nation, though if minority groups choose they could really upset the status quo -- combined there are millions of blacks and various tones of brown and yellow in the USA -- all of which groups are aware they are getting the short end of the stick.

Existing divided factions in the USA are too numerous to name, though I would mention another two opposing groups, the largely illiterate, stunningly ignorant Trump supporters against the reasonably educated and socially aware group that loath Trump and his mindless support base. Which reality today highlights the nation's two-party adversarial political system primed for exploitation as was successfully achieved by third party forces in the 2016 election. Now compare to one party nations like China, where politics is not an issue, which allows for getting the job done more efficiently; the speed at which China achieved, from push-bike economy (in the 60's), to the world's most productive and influential economies today, is staggering and historically unprecedented and is largely due to the one-party system not hamstrung by adversarial politics.

So it shouldn't be too difficult for a third, perhaps foreign entity, to agitate and antagonise by simultaneously supporting any number of antagonistic groups while adopting various guises -- moron Americans are very easy prey indeed as they believe almost everything they are told by their lying media.

Put simply the superior way to defeat divided America is from within by simply exacerbating existing internal social divisions/frictions, which are growing and worsening by the day.

I needn't spell out how it's done, though I would be forced if addressing Trump supporters, however,

I do not speak gibberish as fluently as Trump. America is begging for pure Machiavellian politics, so why not accommodate it, the world would be a much better place without American interference.

There is no doubt that the USA is very ripe for the pickings. Now consider America's divide and conquer strategy that it applies successfully on other nations, not realising that this strategy is made for the Un-united, States of America.

Be careful uncle, as provocateurs and agents across the spectrum of American society are in the field as I write. Now let's see how efficient your surveillance state apparatus really is, and whether agency personnel are able to see the nose on their, to date, moronic, blind faces?

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-187.html>