

The 'News' in One Word -- Conflict

by daisy Wednesday, Aug 15 2018, 7:57pm

international / prose / post

It matters little which sources of 'news' one views, the one common factor is CONFLICT: adversarial politics of course, environmental groups battling corporations, abortionists fighting right to lifers and ignoring a woman's prerogative, imagining that aborting is a walk in the park, and on it goes; however, the most threatening conflicts are those that involve nations, particularly nuclear armed superpowers, which nation's policies are at logger-heads OR presented that way, as really there's no difference in peaceful aspirations that benefit everyone BUT there's a HUGE difference in policies that only benefit the few.

Peace, cooperation and harmonious progress never make the news simply due to the fact that they don't exist. So the question arises, does the news create social reality? It would seem so. Ruling elites depend on the divide and conquer strategy primarily as it keeps the masses at arms length, the last thing minority elites want is public focus on them, as they would soon be brought to trial for their innumerable horrendous crimes and eliminated from the scene. Furthermore, they own the means of information dissemination, the media in all its forms today and so the news is shaped in THEIR interests, naturally!.

If CONFLICT in all its forms is constantly covered, exaggerated and thereby created by the media, people begin to imagine that it is normal daily fare instead of orchestrated/shaped events, yet most conflicting groups desire a rational and peaceful cessation to fighting, which certain interests oppose, as focus must be maintained elsewhere; these elite mega-wealthy merchants of death and destruction live and work their diabolical schemes away from the public eye and public scrutiny, it's either the Democrats or the Republicans, or this flag against that flag, NEVER is it the causes behind these orchestrated conflicts/events, from which these nefarious forces profit.

It is known that no disease is cured by treating symptoms, all disease must be eradicated from its source, the infectious AGENTS; roots and trunk must be attacked not the leaves of the tree, this is common and medical sense which the majority are aware of but clearly they are not aware of how easily they are manipulated by the media with divide conquer and distract strategies.

It is tragic that the alternative media also follows this mainstream course sometimes more vehemently than the mass media, how thoroughly stupid and imbecilic is that approach, which serves the elites, shame on you all especially the American 'alternative' media that have fallen for the ruse head-first, you dumb, blind, nose-ringed editors.

Republicans and Democrats are two sides of a coin OWNED and manufactured by elites -- that fact is plain as day but conflict overrides all other considerations and the Truth behind the stories disappears from the news, the rustling of leaves attract more attention than the silent workings of roots and trunk.

So the world is held captive and would remain captive/enslaved until such time as the infantile masses decide its time to grow up and cease their infantile behaviour; kids are easily distracted with candy, and how much more are adults distracted with CONFLICT?

The prevailing social disease, which it is, would only be cured and eradicated when the infectious AGENTS are treated directly -- plain and simple.

So if you're looking for someone to blame find the nearest mirror and point your mindless finger at the reflection, and after that little awakening exercise you may decide to heal your society with eyes wide open.

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-217.html>