

Progress

by sybil Thursday, Oct 11 2018, 1:44am international / poetry / post forward against the prevailing wind that buffets my progress -- i have had these pillow fights before yet neither is my physical or mental progress disturbed, i can only move forward so many last kisses some known to be final others haunt my memories as they pretended otherwise, but why should i now consider last kisses, revisions, regrets and joys?

the wind is responsible, as it attempts to reverse my direction but it should know, to no avail, nothing has ever stopped me tho at times some tracks appear deeper than others -- pauses, times for reflection, revision and new visions the new is the impelling force, new horizons, experiences to satiate my unquenchable thirst for everything at times i feel i could imbibe a universe and pick my teeth with a comet's tail

those that pass me, moving in the opposite direction, struggle, yet the wind is in their favour, they seem asleep cocooned in their learned dreams, myopic visions and pointlessness, they remain unaware the wind assists their choice of direction i am invisible to them as it does not occur to any that there is another direction against the prevailing wind which so easily herds and concentrates the many into narrow passes until the only option is desperate plummeting, the crowded force of others annihilates them all, each in their turn i watch the grasses and trees yield in the wind tho hissing against the force, they remain fixed in their place waiting for change in the distance ahead i see a solitary figure proceeding in my direction, tho far in advance, i wonder ...

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-311.html>