

Light

by lux Monday, Nov 12 2018, 8:47am international / poetry / post who would or could lead the blind in a blind world?

light evades the blind, what do they know of truth in a world of darkness?

light cannot be contained in a word, narrative or discourse, no amount of false representation approaches the Light, which remains unconstrained, un-captured, formless, infinite -- beyond all conception language is finite, limited, while Light is infinite limitless, who is able to capture infinity with finite thought?

yet we all seek the Light from which we came as it is our Life and truth, though we are subject to it, as it created all things known and unknown, are you able to walk without legs, why seek Light with the physical senses, they are limited by the physical world and light is not apprehended by matter?

so with deliberation seek your source, not with thought, which is merely language without articulation, all its signs and symbols resolve back to their source, culture, which is circular and always leads back, reproduces itself; it is a huge lie, nothing, no book or treatise produced by men is able to discover truth as they were ALL produced by culture and therefore are enslaved by it

Light is without bounds and if you seek your source be boundless, free of thought, and realise that nothing produced (by men) grants true freedom, one form of slavery replaced with another is not freedom therefore be free as the unconstrained and all permeating Light which is self-begotten, are you the progenitor or are you a created being subject to your creator?

return to your source if you would truly be free as you carry within that spark of creation which you have carried since before time, you are already free and have found what you seek but culture has blinded you and veils reality with intentional and unintentional lies break your culture/thought habit, it is poison to the soul without it your consciousness would then be a beacon not hidden in darkness/torment or veiled/smothered by ignorance all things emerged and resolve themselves in that which created them no-one is able to free you but yourself who or what is superior, the God/s created by men/culture or man, who created ALL the Gods and religions?

it is really a simple matter to be free, mind is a cultural product that depends on thought for its existence, without mind your consciousness, which is Light, is liberated into itself, a radiance that transcends physical eyes though it is seen in wonder by the single eye of consciousness your liberation is delivered in an instant, you cannot work/labour for it, as you already possess it you cannot seek for it as you have never lost it it only takes thoughtless awareness/clarity, which sublime qualities cannot be captured or described by words, signs, or symbols indeed, you have nothing to grasp but your true, luminous, Self