

State War -- the Likelihood

by lex Saturday, Feb 9 2019, 9:00pm

international / prose / post

It seems the global 'war on terror,' has served its purpose, that is, the ruse that allowed the USA to illegally and preemptively invade any resource rich weaker nation and steal its resources, notwithstanding that numerous invaded nations posed NO THREAT whatsoever, to the USA.

Various words are/were used, however, today the US instigated Venezuelan coup does not fit the terrorist bill, so other words are utilised in an abysmal attempt to justify gross US interference in a foreign sovereign nation. "Regime Change" if not internal, is a gross illegality under international law, therefore any coup attempts must be portrayed as originating internally, though in the case of Venezuela over 75% of the population supports the sitting, democratically elected, legitimate government, so Washington neocons with designs on Venezuelan OIL, have dispensed with charades and now openly threaten other sovereign, resource rich nations to surrender their resources for exploitation by American oil companies and other commercial interests, banks.

We should have also noted the shift in war mongering tactics that have taken place in Washington, it seems that overnight extremist Jihadis no longer matter, how could they, they were all created, trained and armed by the Saudis, CIA and Israel, though only yesterday they posed a threat to the entire world, according to the US propaganda apparatus called the mass media.

Today however, China and Russia are the 'designated' primary enemies of Americans according to the same fickle media, well really, as neither nation is disposed to war with any other State, particularly America, as is self-evident. Only the USA adheres to a perpetual war neocon doctrine and all unnecessary wars must have an enemy, and where none exists simply fabricate or invent a convenient enemy the media can run with.

Well, I'm not sure about average Americans, but the world has learned, American lies, tricks and political deceptions no longer cut it internationally, hence the status and influence of America on the world stage is waning rapidly. Now, you would think the neocon designers of these ruses and excuses for previous wars would have thought of something new to dupe the world but they haven't, so today they resort to outright open threats, CORRUPTION, economic warfare, sanctions and embargos, and political intimidation, which has numerous disadvantages, as it becomes obvious there's a self-serving bully and thief in the 'room,' which is another reason for America's rapid decline.

So money, which the US prints on demand without any commodity or production base supporting its value, is the only option left with which to influence the world. However, the valueless paper petrodollar is now under threat and other nations are aware that it is all the USA has left in its arsenal, so whether by choice or strategy nations are dumping dollars for gold world wide, though Russia and China lead in this regard. In other words the USA and its only supporting mechanism is now under threat, some have likened it to an Achilles heel as all it takes to bring the entire USA to a halt is attacking the paper dollar, an unenviable position for any nation to live with, but America has never excelled in foreign affairs or international politics, all it knows is criminal corruption and brute force, which befits an adolescent, rustic nation.

Do not be deceived, the powers that own the USA have no intention of starting a nuclear conflict with China and/or Russia, however, they will play the 'threat of war' between superpowers to death until it too loses its momentum and becomes transparent, but that trick is also known internationally. So uncle, what would you? Either accept a multi-polar world and do legitimate business and trade, rather than pursuing mass murder and theft, or go down in a heap, so simple even the average American understands.

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-469.html>