Ventriloguy

> raise the curtain and see the art of ventriloquy a pallid, cognisant being speaking for you and himself, tho the dialogue is scripted to entertain and distract the dummy here is alive the devoid of sense, such is the refined art of ventriloquy today but look closely and discover that the dummy is familiar and the pallid being is your adversary he finishes his act and withdraws behind the curtain, unseen tho the act continues via the apparatus of the broader theatrical art where it is more difficult to determine the ventriloquists from the dummies it becomes apparent that the dialogue is non-existent, as the art behind the curtain clearly emphasises the sole discourse of a scripted monologue
