

America and the Losing Syndrome

by gerry Thursday, Apr 4 2019, 1:25am

international / prose / post

Americans love to 'win' in fact they are so addicted to winning that when confronted with the reality of numerous losses, they withdraw into denial. No, they say, we really did win that one and that one, of course relying on the fictitious media which never accepts a loss. Indeed culture is a self-sustaining system based on lies or whatever.

Americans truly believe they are 'exceptional,' which cultural delusion allows for the flouting of international laws and the overt illegal military intrusions into other sovereign nations, usually based on fabrications and outright lies, but there are spoils to be had and the population is complicit in these overt thefts, as those that protest are offered as feeble compensation, 'look what America has done for you,' referring of course to all the stolen resources/spoils from weaker nations they have overcome and in which they have installed puppet regimes that serve Washington, such as is being attempted, as I write, in Venezuela, but this now very old tattered trick will not succeed without a monumental fight or war of slow attrition, as China and Russia are supporting the democratically elected government, which opposes the American puppet usurper.

However, before proceeding consider first the lame excuse of 'what America has done for you,'

Take a closer look losers. America has mass murdered and brazenly stolen other nation's valuable resources not for YOU but for mega-corporation's bottom line, PROFITS and filthy rich elite bankers, now compare your living standards with theirs -- you eat shit and live in hovels while the rich in every respect live on another affluent planet that might as well be in another solar system -- that is the reality but of course it's painful, so average Americans withdraw into denial in order not to confront the reality of their miserable situations and the fact that they are being screwed daily because they haven't the guts to do anything about it. The pain of that combined reality is so great they would rather support buffoons such as Trump that pretend greatness while they are eating their shit sandwiches and suffering.

Okay, so now lets look at the major war wins and losses. Vietnam and Indo-China, LOST though Vietnam was outgunned and out-competed in every respect except tenacity and the will not to lose their nation to an invading power; next Kuwait, a WIN but at what cost? The cost of this sledge hammer mosquito war was so great that the following Invasion of Iraq, based on orchestrated lies, was done on the cheap, the result today, is a LOSS of monumental proportions as costs have not yet been recovered, so too Afghanistan and Syria, America's economic lifeblood has been haemorrhaging for decades. So to Venezuela today, which Washington neocons imagined would be a pushover, not so again, as powerful interests in the form of Russia and China have other ideas and refuse to lose huge investments as they did in Libya, which two opposing nations combined are easily able to defeat America in any war of its choice including a nuclear Armageddon, which by sheer numbers alone China and Russia would win while the entire American continent would smolder radioactive for thousands of years, compare with the enormous landmass space of China and Russia combined, which allows for non-irradiated pockets in remote regions. So Washington crazies as insane as they are, dare not engage other superpowers in this type of warfare. So perhaps a more traditional warfare is on the cards, but who is going to fight it? The Pentagon is already suffering military personnel exhaustion from all its wars over the past few decades, the American military is spread so thin today it couldn't butter a slice of bread. That is the REALITY for all you doodle dreamboats, you've ALREADY LOST before it starts.

No nation is exceptional and those that thought they were litter history books with their ignoble falls and failures; though it could be argued that America is indeed exceptional; America is exceptionally stupid, ignorant, unaware and DESPERATE, proven by its current leader, Trump, a pathological personality that the world accurately considers to be a clown.

So think again, Washington neocons, it really is time for a change but you are so addicted to your old ways you would rather go down with the ship and take the profoundly deluded American population with you; well, bon voyage, doodle dreamboats! Almost the entire world today knows you are LOSERS.

But I urge America to go for it as of course you must win, so please give it your best shot as the sooner America is reduced to ashes the better for the rest of the civilised world.

Now, I'm aware that conspiracy theorists believe that no Armageddon is possible as the global elite rule the entire world, well maybe at present and of course they do not wish to die in a nuclear holocaust, but they have less control than you think, anytime China chooses to renege on its HUGE debt to the Rothschilds, it could simply say shove it, and what would the Rothschilds, owed $trillions, do about it? Exactly what America does today, economic warfare via sanctions and embargoes, which always bring smaller nations to heel, but not so China's large internationally connected economy, the world is a small interconnected place today, China's economic collapse would see every western nation in the world impacted if filthy rich global elites decided to play economic warfare, it's called being between a rock and a hard place, you're fucked if you do and fucked if you don't and China and Russia KNOW IT. That is why they are WINNING today and would continue to win in the medium and long term.

So face it doodles, you're living in a dreamworld about to turn nightmare, you have no chance with your current worn out strategies -- either accept you're just another nation in a multi-polar world or go down like the rabid, rustic, insane and violent dog you are!

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-559.html>