international / poetry / post

if i had an eye
i would see yet i have two and remain blind

if i had a brain i would think and discriminate for myself yet my two lobes accept a drip-feed from the matrix and believe its fictions if i had a heart i would feel and empathise with the suffering of others yet i am insensitive as my heart was stolen for transplant to the highest bidder if i had a soul i would know god and delight in its creation but i remain a modern man as hollow and empty as a reed
