

Post-Modern America

The movement of Post-Modernism, originally formulated by leading french academics has flowered today in American society but it's not what was intended, if anything 'positive' was intended, the hope was that it could be used successfully to subvert the power structures of ruling elites and traditional authority; however, it backfired dramatically!

PM was thought to offer a tool whereby naturalised social meanings based on language were easily subverted. Left leaning academics marvelled at the Death of the Author (author-ity), espoused by Roland Barthes in the 60's and took that direction to its conclusion, Post Modernism, where meaning became what is constructed by the reader/interpreter, in other words all meaning is subjective; however, its flaw is that subjectivity is also learned socially as the resource available for interpretation is language. So regardless of how many changes are made to meaning, they all occur within the finite bounds and constraints of (learned) language. So how does PM affect us all today?

That is a dog's balls question as the answer is obvious. PM's effects are most evident socially in political correctness (PC) and sexuality, specifically gender based. Today traditional males and females are able to swap genders if they so choose, as gender has been reduced to subjective interpretation. That subversion of gender identity is manifest as 'transgender toilets' in schools, for instance. 'Girls' become women though no-one is able to define what a woman is or when the real transition from a girl to a woman occurs, so you see, those females that 'correct' their immediate company for using the term 'girl' do not know what they are doing outside their socially LEARNED, politically IMPOSING, habit.

When asked to define a woman they cannot, as they would fall into the trap of authoritative meaning which they are attempting to subvert; moreover, the 'headmistress' of a girls high school has taken PC to its most absurd level to date, by insisting that "girls" is politically incorrect as her clearly girl students are women, of course absurdity in the PM world has also lost its meaning and for that matter, 'meaning' has become meaningless, which outcome -- and take NOTE -- serves the interests of minority ruling elites as they have been first to exploit post-modernism to manage large societies and serve their own criminal interests.

You see, by subverting the traditional foundations of meaning, society then becomes more pliant to introduced meaninglessness, subversions and inversions; for instance TORTURE has become "enhanced interrogation," the mass murder of civilians has become "collateral damage," for Christ's sake, and of course Christ is also a fabrication, so what values hold society together in a PM world?

That question also has an obvious answer, the dictates of ruling elites disseminated subliminally through their mass media apparatuses, where do you think feminists and females obsessed with gender terms and classifications learned their behaviours? MEDIA in all its aspects from books to audio-visual and digital information systems, which are owned and controlled by ruling elites, you dumb, BLIND, brainwashed PC fuckwits!

Meanwhile ruling elites are literally getting away with murder by subverting and inverting traditional meaning. Nevertheless, to demonstrate why post-modernism is a lie and propaganda tool today, simply ask any guest at your next dinner party to hand you the salt, and you surely won't be handed a chicken.

So the obvious conclusion is that foundational social meanings are up for grabs in a post-modern society and those that have most successfully exploited PM and stolen or hijacked entire societies throughout the western world depend on PM to avoid accountability and the heinous war and other crimes against humanity they commit daily.

If you fall for PM bullshit you are a bigger fool than those that adhere to traditional values as at least the latter know where they are going -- please pass the salt! Torture is torture and mass murder is murder, now either accept those realities or impose your PM on ruling elites and jail them for their obvious crimes, you ridiculous, media-trained SLAVES!
