Confirmed: James Comey Used His Personal Email and Laptop While Conducting FBI Business

Former FBI director James Comey used his personal email to conduct official FBI business, even as he publicly criticized Hillary Clinton over her use of a personal email during her time as Secretary of State. Well at least Comey is now aware of the old adage that, "people that live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones". Neither Clinton nor Comey have any credibility whatsoever.

The news comes as part of the Department of Justice Inspector General's report released Thursday that was highly critical of Comey's handling of the Clinton email investigation and found his own use of a personal account was "inconsistent" with FBI policy, HuffPost reports.

Per the inspector general's report, Comey said he used his personal email when he was crafting speeches or organization-wide emails with unclassified information. Comey told investigators he used two phones and his own laptop for unclassified work.

According to HuffPost, "asked if his use of a personal email and personal device was in line with FBI regulations, Comey said he didn't know, but had the 'sense' it was okay."

The IG disagreed, finding that "given the absence of exigent circumstances and the frequency with which the use of personal email occurred Comey's use of a personal email account on multiple occasions for unclassified FBI business to be inconsistent with the FBI Policy Statement."

[This news in no way exonerates Clinton it merely re-affirms that Washington and gov institutions are criminal and rotten to the core.]
