

Tweeting Nuclear War

by jaxie Monday, May 20 2019, 9:14pm

international / prose / post

America's Buffoon-in-Chief took to his twitter account to threaten Iran's annihilation, “.. end of Iran,” if it chooses to “threaten” the USA, a somewhat over reaction to a defensive posture, though indicative of a fearful, over-reactive paranoid psychosis. Well, few are surprised at this outburst as Trump has threatened North Korea with same, numerous times, “fire, brimstone, fury, blah, blah, blah!” And what came of it, NOTHING? It reminds one of an IMPOTENT MAN imagining his penis is able to fire when it has been proven it remains a flaccid DUD. Kim Jong-Un not only remained steadfast but mocked the geriatric buffoon-in-chief into the ground. Next minute Trump was pandering to Kim praising that leader with flattering admiration - all recorded in the media if anyone cares to check.

Sure, we know that threats and planned war attacks on Iran are not Trump's doing, acting president John Bolton and his vice-president Mike Pompeo are responsible, at least they are aware, unlike the American public, that Trump is a no-account bore with NO BALLS, or dick, for that matter.

Indeed, the same is reflected in the American nation which has fallen so far behind its major competitors, Russia and China, that the mass media is loath to even hint at it, though the Rand Corporation ran a computer simulation of WWII, and revealed openly that the US/NATO would lose against Russia and China. Though of course the only predictable outcome of a nuclear war between superpowers is global annihilation - has it not occurred to Trump, Bolton and Pompeo that Russia and China are allies of Iran AND Venezuela? So all talk of wars of annihilation is the usual, 'blow it out your ass' American bravado. How on earth do you imagine the world could take America seriously on any front today?

International reactions speak for themselves -- failing (in every way) America is no longer taken seriously, using nuclear war as the first card rather than the last, leaves nothing to bargain with when it is known that nuclear war is entirely out of the question. It reminds older folk, of paranoid, drunken president Nixon who wished to nuke Vietnam in a desperate attempt to win that losing war, but his underlings, primarily Kissinger, refused those orders waiting instead for Nixon to sober up.

But Trump isn't a drunk he's an erratic pathological liar, braggart, narcissist and incompetent moron, who is ignored by members of his inner administration, a la Bolton, Pompeo and Pence. So if the American media could relax its distraction strategies with Trump, as they simply are not working as intended, the world wouldn't be bored shitless with Trump news saturation -- get over it, Rupert and ilk, overkill is counter-productive.

There are so many forces in the US that would not follow the order to nuke any nation that it's an impossibility to even entertain the idea that Trump should be taken seriously. Every policy that has so far been undertaken is not Trump's it's the corporate sector's dictates which body controls the Presidency and Congress and that body is the last to provoke a nuclear war as it values its ill-gotten wealth and future existence.

So America, the WORLD would welcome you back into REALITY any time it becomes possible, meanwhile, blow it all out your star-spangled, collective stupid ass, LOSER!

<https://www.rt.com/op-ed/459820-trump-iran-twitter-threat-war/>

---

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-630.html>