

The Flag - A Colored Piece of Cloth

by rex Wednesday, Jul 3 2019, 11:25pm

international / prose / post

It's the 4th of July in fantasy land America, whoopee!

As an international citizen I recall the infamous words of George W Bush referring disdainfully to the American Constitution and Founding documents as “pieces of paper” and then attempting to substitute himself, commander-in-chief, as the sole authority of the land, what a travesty I thought and I'm an Aussie. Where was the revolution to remove such a treasonous government, as is outlined and obliged in the founding documents? Nowhere, and where is America today, in the same place, nowhere -- America has lost its raison d'etre without which no nation/entity is able to survive.

'O, say can you SEE ..'

So what is an American today now that the Constitution and Founding principles upon which the nation was built have been trashed, well, clearly a failing superpower, which previous superpower status it reached by adhering to the principles outlined in the founding documents, and what a rapid decline it has been. China and Russia have overtaken America economically and in high tech weapons development and are set to overturn the existing world disorder created by now rogue, criminal State, America.

The raw reality is that almost immediately after America became a rogue, mass murdering thieving State with only one aim, PROFIT for the few, its decline advanced at lightning speed - the nation had lost itself. Just look at the extremely psychologically flawed and totally incompetent people in the Whitehouse today -- white is also the usual color of padded isolation cells in psychiatric institutions. To a man and woman America's leadership is a pathetic joke, but its the 4th so ignore reality, raise the flag and chant the new slogan, MAGA for all the good it would do, which of course amounts to nothing as nothing comes of slogans and waving colored pieces of cloth, now that the American flag is meaningless a la Bush and successive puppet presidents.

From an outside POV it seems that the vast majority of Americans are celebrating their LOST standard of living, international competitiveness (economically and militarily) and light speed decline. However, it was dubya Bush that first announced publicly that America had lost its way though he declared it in other terms and there's no denying it today. So have a great 4th, you doodle dandy morons, you are cheering yourselves into RUIN, plain to see.

Of course a REAL leader would easily be able to reverse this destructive trend by simply returning to the principles as outlined in the Founding documents but the nation is now ruled by avaricious, self-interested elites that care nothing for flags, principles, law/order or anything OTHER THAN SHORT TERM PROFIT! That is why America is failing.

Now understand that prior to electing a real independent leader to lead a FREE nation, the people must free themselves from the insidious lies and propaganda the elite owned mass media spews daily like sewage, together with trashing, or at the very least, regulating pan surveillance technologies and everything else elites have implemented in order to manage the masses, increase THEIR profits and protect THEIR interests.

Only then would average Americans re-discover REAL FREEDOM, as quite clearly they have no idea of the meaning of the word TODAY. But we already know that is an impossible task for Americans today.

So America's future is plain to see and none of it is worth the cost of a colored piece of rag/flag (made in China) or the blind hoorahs from enslaved lost, citizens. Home of the brave, land of the free, my ass!

Inverse Times Open Publishing. <http://inversetimes.lingama.net/news/story-702.html>