

Trump, the Best Weapon Russia and China Have

A president that intentionally divides the American nation based on race, religion and hate, compromises all aspects of America's culture including its competitiveness, as quite simply, a house divided cannot stand. Trump, with his tribal, divisive, hate-filled rhetoric, largely aimed at non-white Americans, is doing such serious harm to the nation that his perverse leadership style must be rectified one way or the other, immediately, not least because by internally dividing a nation competing nations gain the advantage, as is clearly evident today.

Putin, a very shrewd politician, realised Trump's faults and destructive potential immediately and flattered the American leader openly and so won his support, while Russia's advanced high-tech weapons development rapidly overtook America's - the 'trick' was, if intentional, to allow the American mass media to become so engrossed with Trump that America would be distracted from the pursuits that once made it great; readers should note that no American leader has ever had the saturation media attention Trump has been given, which detrimental effect has been and continues to be enormously disadvantageous for America but extremely advantageous for competing nations. One can only wonder why the privately owned powerful mass media would create such a compromising situation for the nation.

Meanwhile, Russian ally China took huge advantage of Trump's bungling on everything he touched, as he is clearly not qualified for the job, and screamed ahead economically with its GLOBAL infrastructure projects (BRI) designed to capture the entire global economy, which if allowed to progress at speed, it would no doubt do.

It becomes readily apparent that Trump is Russia's and China's best asset, however that asset is supported to the hilt by the American mass media, so the fault lies clearly with American commercial interests that support Trump, as there is no such thing as bad publicity, something even huckster and rabble rouser Trump understands, so he goes from one extreme to another to shore up support from his radical, racist, white support base. Now please note American ruling elites, which are largely comprised of Jews, this -- Trump's white trash support base -- does not discriminate between its perceived enemies and Wall Street and Washington Jews are included, so in this instance, 'if you sow the wind, you will reap a whirlwind,' which the El Paso, among others, mass shootings clearly indicate.

Now, one would think that these shadowy elite powers should know better than set themselves up for a violent fall, however, I am reminded of a Jewish joke performed on stage by Jack Benny; an armed mugger confronts a Jew in the street and says, "hand it over, your money or your life," the Jew stalls, which perplexes the mugger, who then screams, "didn't you hear me, I said your money or your life?" The Jew responds, "I heard you, I am thinking about it!"

Indeed, cultural and human frailty brings everyone undone -- personally I cannot see any way out for America, as Trump, assisted by the profit only driven mass media, has set a new extremist cultural standard, of course we all know that these segregationist/racist/tribal tendencies always existed in the US but the unified sane majority was always the correcting/balancing factor; for example, and to highlight a UNIFYING president, JFK.

Kennedy also relying on the mass media, his charisma, VISION and positive, progressive rhetoric, was able to UNIFY and harness the American population with his vision of social justice and national progress, and the public (and most of the western world) loved it. America did indeed reach the moon before Russia, though Russia had a huge head-start. Kennedy's vision had worked largely due to the UNIFYING and motivating effect he had on the American people; however, in stark contrast, vision DEVOID Trump, who only knows how to divide and hate, is effectively destroying America, and his moron, manic support base love it, along with the Chinese and Russian leadership -- LOL. It should also be noted that world leaders in general consider Trump an ignorant, typical American moron, whose only talents relate to huckster and snake oil sales, as a 'reality' TV performer, nevertheless the mass media continues to support him and that with centralised control from the CFR today, so no excuses.

In the meantime America is experiencing the consequences of a house divided by Trump, just ask the families of victims of the latest Ohio and El Paso shootings about the hate-filled carnage, which Trump is DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE for, no bones about it!
