

Do unto Others Before They Do unto YOU!

The last dynamic and successful civil protests occurred during the late 60's, but they failed. True, the Vietnam protests eventually forced the US and lackey western allies to withdraw. True, US blacks gained some justice, etc, BUT the reaction of elite rulers during this crisis period (for them) was swift and devastating, a planned (without doubt) spate of assassinations saw almost all visionary leaders of this global movement abruptly terminated with pure violence/murder. Subsequently, the global movement due to a lack of leadership, lost its way and fizzled out. Quite simply it was destroyed by the mass murdering parasitic elites that own all western governments.

So where did WE go wrong, as that movement could have indeed resulted in a reformed sustainable world, and a higher degree of equality and justice for all, so we must address previous failures before we have a hope of succeeding today in a world of captured, blind, fearful, digital slaves, most of which are beyond help; however, as has always been the case, only a dedicated handful are required to change the course of history. And as history also teaches us, though with a single exception, Gandhi, successful reforms r/evolutions are a bloody affair, though no major armies are required.

Consider the rulers as they stand arrogantly displaying themselves to the world, the Forbes 500, Wall Street and other central Bankers, the CEOs of large trans-national corporations, their servants in political power right up to the presidents and prime ministers of all FAKE democratic nations, ALL of them are known to us and are easily identified right down to their addresses and this tiny MINORITY is able to be dispatched and eliminated with minimal effort by other disciplined minorities diametrically opposed to them.

However, today, no-one acts decisively against them with the same violent force they utilise to eliminate any threat to their wealth/POWER, they have proven beyond any doubt that no amount of innocent human lives lost in their orchestrated plundering wars matter in the least when the pursuit of THEIR PROFITS and POWER is jeopardised. What we witness instead of targeted assassinations of this profoundly evil milieu is insane mass shooting of innocents setup by the divisive, elite owned media, like the recent Christchurch killings and many others. Or worse, shooters of innocent school children and citizens that happen to be in the wrong place when some lunatic opens fire on a random group.

The arrogance and misplaced confidence elites display today is clearly the result of no real opposing public reaction to them directly, and so they brandish their ill-gotten gains and horrendous crimes against humanity to the world, imagining that the masses are completely in their grip. But as Lincoln so aptly and accurately put it, "you can't fool all of the people all of the time;" and so only a handful of aware dedicated superior intellects is required to upset the evil elite status quo and alter the course of history. And these groups exist in every nation in the world.

Sooner, we hope, rather than later these necessarily small unified groups or single group, will strike a devastating blow to the unified, mutually cooperating, global elite criminal syndicate, make no mistake about it - overreach and the unbridled pursuit of profit at ANY cost. Will see it all backfire in their despicable, demonic faces.

And I must conclude with a direct message: your information censorship strategies are easily circumvented, your psychological and behavioural tactics have not succeed in capturing the forces that threaten you most, your every EXTREME move today, as you know no moderation, is another nail in your waiting collective coffin. You now have teenage school children defying you (climate change) on world platforms, and when these good hearted people realise that their pleas and passive actions amount to nothing, as you could care less, they WILL ACT DIRECTLY against you, as clearly you only understand DIRECT AND FINAL action.

Your demise is indeed inevitable as you are not free but are compelled to act in a predictable manner and observable course, primarily due to the weaknesses of your own material addictions, and as we all know addictive, compelled personalities are DRIVEN to FAILURE in the end. We know you are WEAK but you should know that if we are STRONG enough to emerge from the squalor and most hopeless, destructive social environments that you are directly responsible for creating, you pose no challenge whatsoever, AND WE KNOW IT.

And with that I say, enjoy your last days in this world as timing is of OUR choice. And as the Christian saviour stated, it will come when you least expect it, you murdering, planet killing, scumbags! Too fuckin' easy.
