

Armchair 'Warriors'

Here we go again, verbosity in the West over the Bolivian coup. Hundreds of armchair warriors are contributing nothing but empty words while the Bolivian people pay with their lives in the fight against elite financial forces stealing what is not theirs, in this instance the government and nation of Bolivia, which new fake, non-elected government is about to use iron fist tactics to oppress/enslave the people and steal whatever they wish to increase the profits/wealth of the elite criminal interests they serve.

Surely the obvious cannot be missed? These elite forces are the same that devastated North African and Middle Eastern nations using as pretext, the 'war on terror.' We watched from our armchairs a succession of sovereign nations laid to waste and their leaders killed, for what? Profit in the form of oil and other resources which were and are being stolen by the day, Syrian oil for example - so what's new dummies? This OVERT gangsterism has been evident for over two decades without so much as a whimper of ACTION from the western masses. Indeed, armchair warriors is not a misplaced or erroneous term to describe western masses.

So if you really feel strongly about some cause then pull your thumb out of your arse and do something about supporting those nations physically with your will and strength in the form of fighting to free oppressed peoples everywhere. And what better place to start (and end) than by eliminating the root cause of the infection/disease, Western Financial Elites, which are behind ALL the bloodshed and mayhem, as they benefit directly but are loath to get their hands dirty, they have established mechanisms, CIA, NSA and Pentagon to do all the dirty work, as it is CLEAR today these institutions do not serve nations/people, they serve financial elites and have done so almost since their inception.

However, the masses fail time and again to address the cause and cure the problem. If you wish to annihilate the disease you must address the cause or heart of the problem, FINANCIAL ELITES, which are NEVER attacked or held accountable for the heinous crimes they commit, as they prefer to remain in the shadows utilising various agencies and bought governments to do their bidding.

Follow the money in other words, it always leads to the perpetrators and don't stop at puppet agencies or bought governments go to those that own and control them if you truly wish to eliminate the problem for good.

Of course direct action is confronting, as God forbid, you then must take responsibility, from which you run faster than the speed of light, you gutless, verbose wonders - one ACTION striking at the root is worth more than all the words recorded since the beginning of written history. So of what use is detailing the latest outbreak of the disease if you fail to cure the problem at its heart?

Are you so easily distracted and blind to the cause? I think not, but I do think you prefer to avoid it and the responsibility we ALL have to our fellow man in times of distress and hardship. So let me read about one of you going to Gaza, Syria, Libya, Afghanistan, Yemen, Somalia, Congo, Venezuela, Bolivia, Brazil and numerous other Central American nations and fighting to oust those serving western financial elites, and then perhaps you may wish to address the heart of the problem, Wall Street, the City of London, Washington etc, all of which commercial serving interests directly and indirectly refer to a handful of elite families and interests globally. Research for yourselves to VERIFY the TRUTH and then know you are either a coward or a REAL fighter for justice, freedom and fair play, everywhere.

We must all endeavour to report from the front line of the numerous struggles we face together -- and remember no social force exists stronger than the united force of the masses, which FACT sends chills down the spines of minority criminal elites that rule today, but not for long.
