

Trump's Idiotic Victimisation of Mexicans and Latinos

by skye Thursday, Jun 28 2018, 11:20pm

international / prose / post

Not so long ago (2006) dubya Bush threatened to deport all illegal immigrants from America, the response was immediate and stunning. Almost overnight 500,000 Latinos hit the streets of LA and clogged the freeways in a show of force, demonstrating how quickly and easily a united front could wreak havoc if provoked. Well, needless to say, Bush and his fascist administration backflipped on the policy immediately and calm prevailed.

LA streets Saturated with Latino protesters in 2006

Now, you would think American politicians have learned but not in good ol' America. It's beyond reason that any administration would again victimise and provoke the Latino population, legals and illegals. So why the quiet from the victimised, marginalised and persecuted in America over Trump's Nazi immigration policies? Quiet indeed, the response would come from the midterms, why bother with other strategies as the retaliatory vote would send a more powerful message to all American politicians. That simple.

So, would the Trump administration pursue its overtly inhumane, racist policies? Not so fast it seems. Trump's admin has already ceased separating children from parents, a most brutal Nazi policy to say the least, but what of the prevailing negative attitude to Latinos in general? Well, let's wait for the outcome of the midterms. Is racist America ready for a BIG surprise?